Dear Joshua:

Time passes quickly and I have to bother you with one question in connection with the Symposium. We have written to Cavalli, Stocker, Ephrussi-Taylor, and Jacob and asked them to give the main talks according to your suggestions. Stocker, Ephrussi-Taylor, and Jacob have answered and accepted the invitation. We have not received any answer from Cavalli up to this day. We are now wandering about the reason and start to worry whether we should wait any longer and perhaps miss the chance to ask Hayes in time. Also, we would have to invite the panel discussers and in order to do so we ought to have all the main speakers definitely settled. What would you suggest? Shall we write to Cavalli again, or shall we stop considering him and write to Hayes? Or would you perhaps want to write a note to Cavalli-Sforza, since you know him well?

I hope that you and Ester have a nice and pleasant trip and are enjoying Australia. We are certainly looking forward to see you next year.

With warmest personal regards,

yours as ever,

George
